ANOTHER LIFE SAVED

GRODER'S SYRUP

A WORD TO THE SUFFERING FROM A RELIABLE FARMER.

I have suffered with Dyspepsia for the last fifteen years and at times thought I would die. Last winter I was having one of my bad spells, and had called in two doctors without receiving any relief. My wife wanted to have a third one, and asked me whom she should send for; I told her to send for a bottle of Groder's Syrup. I had heard of Groder's Syrup, which she did, and in less than an hour after using it I was relieved. I continued to take it until I was completely cured. Today I am a well man, free from any stomach trouble.

JOHN RAY, Waterville, Me.

TO PROVE OUR FAITH IN THE MEDICINE,

The Strike Soon Over.

[Special to the Press.]

AUBURN, June 13.—The strike at the Ara Cushman Company's shoe factory is over. The firm today signed the Union price list, and the 70 lasters returned to work. It is understood that the firm will soon adopt the Union's blue label.

R. C. Jewett's Suicide.

AUBURN, June 13.—R. C. Jewett, a prominent citizen, committed suicide by hanging himself in his barn yesterday. Mr. Jewett has been in ill health for several years, but has usually borne up with great fortitude, attending to business at times when many men would have been less resolute and courageous. He has been subject to hereditary fits of deep depression, in which a suicidal mania was sometimes developed. Some what more than a year ago his wife, who too well knew what waves of melancholia swept over him, discovered him hanging from a beam in the barn, nearly dead. Yesterday, Mrs. Jewett returned from church, and her husband not answering her call, she searched for him, finding him hanging in the barn dead.

Two Drowned.

BANGOR, June 13.—Mitchell Cowling, aged 24, and John Solgar, aged 33, went bathing tonight in the Stillwater river at Orono, and both were drowned. Solgar's body was recovered, and attempts were made to resuscitate him. Cowling's body was not recovered. Both lived in the Provinces and worked at Orono.

A Blaze at Sanford.

SANFORD, June 12.—Bennett's building on School street, occupied by the American Express Company, Lord's harness shop, and Miss Cook, a dressmaker, was damaged $800 by fire and water this morning; insurance $500.

Gov. Flower's Narrow Escape.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 13.—A car containing Governor Flower and family jumped the track near here this afternoon. Although the train was going at high speed, no one was injured.

ONE MAN CALLED A MURDERER

Because His Supposed Victim Forgot All About Himself.

SPRINGFIELD, O., June 13.—A suit for $168,000, with interest for 15 years, will soon be filed in the United States Courts as a sequel of one of the strangest cases on record. The history illustrates perfectly the state of double consciousness treated of in so masterly a manner in the Century Magazine recently by Dr. Weir Mitchell, and proves, conclusively, that it is possible for a man to totally forget one text and commence on another without a trace of memory of the incidents of the first. The story is as follows:

James A. Brock and Frank Woolsey of London, O., near this city, both wealthy men and cousins, began ranching with nine cattle near Fort Griffin, Texas. The two prospered immensely and in one year their place and stock were valued at $200,000. May 1, 1877, Woolsey started for Fort Griffin for supplies and never returned. Searching parties went out, and Brock was finally suspected and arrested. He was held for months, and released because no proof of guilt could be secured. Relatives of the missing man took possession and sold out for $128,000.

The new owner soon afterward also sold out for $338,000. Brock made a systematic hunt for his partner and four times journeyed from ocean to ocean, scattering offers of reward everywhere. He found Woolsey at Benton, Saline county, Ark., where he had been located since 1878, engaged in the pottery business. Woolsey acknowledged his identity, but would give no reasons for his actions. Brock asked him to go with him to Ohio to clear up the stain of murder. He at first refused to go, but finally, when told that, unless he returned to Ohio, he would be taken to Texas on the charge of conspiracy, he consented to return to Ohio.

He asserts that on the day of his disappearance he was taken ill and got off his horse. He lay down under a tree. In his delirium he awoke and he claims was never conscious of his surroundings until he came to himself in Jewett, Leon county, Texas, in 1879. He refused to give a reason for not promptly returning and clearing Brock. He went at once to Benton and located, but had kept posted regarding Brock's movements. Brock, who is now here, ordered suit to be brought against the relatives for half of $338,000 and interest for 15 years. Heavy damage suits are also proposed. After Woolsey was found, Brock brought him to London and South Charleston, 12 miles from this city, to be identified, thus clearing him of the suspicion of being his murderer.

Notwithstanding the fact that he mixed with the intimate friends of his young manhood in both places he found it impossible to remember them. After he had been there some time, however, he began to remember dimly one in a crowd. He was unable to gain back complete consciousness of his first life however.

ANOTHER KHARTOUM HORROR.

The British About to Leave Uganda to Its Fate.

LONDON, June 13.—The East Africa Company has sent orders to Capt. Lugard to abandon Uganda. It is believed that all of Capt. Lugard's dispatches have been intercepted by an anti-English party blocking the route from Uganda to the coast.

The Times, commenting on the situation in Uganda, says: "The British government ought to step in to save our position in Uganda. Such a question is beyond the sphere of party politics. The whole country would support the government, and the cost would be trifling. It is not easy to decide whether the company's charter compels them to maintain their position in Uganda. They declare that their funds are exhausted and that they have failed to get an increase of capital. The government, three years ago, promised to empower them to levy taxes, but the promise has not been fulfilled. This point must be left to the government and company, but it is terrible to contemplate what will happen if Captain Lugard's force is withdrawn. We will probably have another Khartoum added to our history. Besides this, France and Belgium are both laying jealous eyes on this region."

The Men Who Hooted Carnot.

PARIS, June 13.—The three foreigners arrested yesterday for hooting at President Carnot as he was leaving Longchamps were released by the police today. Their arrest was more a matter of precaution than anything else, for the crowd who heeded the insults offered the President were deeply incensed and there is no doubt the men would have been severely handled had not the police intervened and taken them into custody. No political importance attaches to the incident which is taken as merely an expression of personal ill feeling.

Summer in Spain.

MADRID, June 13.—Terrible thunder storms prevailed in various parts of Spain yesterday and heavy losses of life and injury by lightning are reported. At Melias, a province of Orense, a parish church which was crowded with worshippers attending mass, was struck by lightning and ten persons were instantly killed and twenty-eight others seriously injured. At Mucientes, in the province of Valladolid, a church was also struck by lightning and five of the worshippers were killed and ten injured.

India Wants Bi-Metallism.

SIMLA, June 13.—A large meeting here today unanimously decided to memorialize Parliament to reform the Indian currency by an international agreement establishing bi-metallism or by the establishment of a gold standard. The movement to secure a reform in the currency is receiving strong support throughout India.

The Friends at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 13.—At today's session of the New England Yearly meeting, the statistical report showed a total membership of 4,393, a decrease for the year of 23.

First Reports Erroneous.

HAVANA, June 13.—A despatch from Matanzas states that the report that 600,000 bags of sugar were destroyed by the flooding of a warehouse in that city was erroneous. The quantity of sugar destroyed by the inundation was 90,000 bags. The loss occasioned by the flood is estimated at $250,000.

PEPPER'S PROJECT.

The Alliance Scheme for Remodelling the Country's Finances.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The bill introduced by Mr. Pepper to increase the currency and provide for its circulation, to reduce rates of interest and to establish a bureau of loans, was taken from the table in the Senate today, and Mr. Pepper addressed the Senate in explanation and advocacy of it. It provides for the appointment by the President of three commissioners to have an office in Washington whose duty it shall be to establish loan agencies, one at the capital of every state and territory and at other convenient places, such loan agency to be known as the Central Loan Agency for that state or territory. The business of these local agencies is to lend money to people on the plan of well regulated real estate and loan agencies, secured by real estate.

The loans are to be for not less than one year nor longer than "blank" years. They are to be for not less than $100 nor more than $2500 to any one person or family. There is no provision as to the rate of interest. In order to provide funds, treasury notes are to be issued equal in amount to $150 for every dollar's worth of gold and silver coin and bullion belonging to the United States, the bullion to be estimated at its coinage value. No banking firm, company or corporation is hereafter to receive interest at higher rate per annum than 5 per cent for a short time or 4 per cent for a year or longer.

Mr. Pepper said he had examined the constitutional question and believed that Congress had as perfect authority to lend money to the people as it had to provide for carrying mails or packages or determining rates which railroads may charge for the carriage of freights or passengers. At the close of his speech the bill went over without action.

To Celebrate the Voyage of Columbus.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Secretary Foster sent to the House today, a letter requesting an appropriation of $250,000 to carry out the act providing for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.

Money for Pensions.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The pension appropriation bill was today reported to the Senate from the committee on appropriations. It carries a total of $146,271,350, which is an increase of $11,012,285 over the House bill and is $327,300 less than the estimates. The bill as reported exceeds that of last year by $11,522,565. The principal increase over the House bill is $11,907,634 for army and navy pensions.

The Elks at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 13.—The Grand Lodge and sixth annual reunion of the Benevolent Order of Elks met in this city today for a four days' session. The indications are that the reunion will be one of the largest ever held, and it is expected that fully 600 Elks will be in attendance. At midnight last night over 500 members of the fraternity had arrived. Two live elks named "Mary" and "John," belonging to the Meadowville lodge, have arrived and will take part in the parade tomorrow. The Elks were welcomed by Mayor Bishop and Lieut. Gov. Sheehan. A big feature of the meeting will be the parade tomorrow afternoon. The lodge making the best showing will receive a handsome loving cup, presented by P. G. Williams of Brooklyn. The order has now 224 subordinate lodges and 32,917 members.

CRAWFORD'S LETTER.

He Describes a Brief Interview With President Harrison.

Mr. Blaine's Favorite Story—His Powers of Narration and Absorption—How Gold Cure Keeley Rose from Obscurity to Fame and Fortune.

(COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY RACHELLER & JOHNSON.)

President Harrison, as he approaches the close of his four years' term, has become much better known to the country, although he is so reserved and says so little about himself that it is more from his friends and associates than one obtains a complete knowledge of his character. I saw him the other day in Washington, and I am sure both his friends and his enemies would have respected his attitude regarding the Minneapolis nomination. He appeared to occupy a very dispassionate position. He said that he had no mortgage himself upon the place. He was thankful for the confidence of the people, and was willing to abide by their decision.

I will simply give a picture of the President as he sat at his desk, going through his morning mail. He bears lightly his fifty-nine years. He will have reached the limit of three score with the close of his four years' term. He is of medium height and quite stout. His weight is in the neighborhood of 180 pounds; the shortness of his neck gives him the appearance of not being as tall as he really is. His actual height is five feet, seven. His head is large; his forehead is very full, especially over the eyes; his hair is a silver gray just beginning to thin, and is combed smoothly and flatly over the full brow; his eyes are a gray-blue, intensely keen, and some of the politicians say at times intensely cold; his voice is deep and rapid; he talks with the rush of the rapid thinker. Even Mr. Blaine himself does not talk as rapidly as the President in private conversation. In this conversation he showed no reserve. He either talks freely or does not talk at all. He is not a man of half confidences; he is at his best when he is with his friends and the element of business is eliminated. When surrounded by his children and family no one would think of calling him a cold man.

A study of the President's character, of the work he has done, forces one to the point of esteem, high respect and admiration. It will count for nothing in the history of the various administrations whether the President shook hands well or whether he was able to impress strangers pleasantly during a first interview. I think that the first impression produced by the President upon a stranger is not an agreeable one. He belongs to the type of reserved characters who apparently have made it the rule of their life to conceal their feelings.

The ready utterance of President Harrison and his easy flow of language comes from his great reading and his great powers of observation. His equipment is unusually good. Few Presidents have been so well prepared to administer any part of the government. His military experience was a very thorough one, so that he has the technical knowledge required for the administration of the army and the navy. In his six years in the Senate he made such a special study of the financial question that he soon mastered the details of the Treasury department following Mr. Windom's sudden death. Mr. Foster, when he was appointed Secretary, went to the President for his instructions and for his preliminary training. Mr. Harrison has the legal requirements for filling any of the other cabinet offices, and this same legal knowledge, combined with his powers of observation, his logical mind and his enormous industry, would make him a good Chief Justice. These acquisitions of the President are plain and patent to everyone who knows him in Washington.

I know that it is fatiguing in these latter days to talk about anybody's war record. It is universally conceded that physical courage is a common quality and to speak merely of a man's bravery who served during the war is to pay him no special compliment. I have heard just two points of view concerning the President's military service which were enough out of the common to merit a passing notice. I asked an officer who served with him in the 70th Indiana Regiment to give me an idea of Mr. Harrison as a soldier. His reply was at first what I did not expect; he said that he was perhaps the most unpopular Colonel who ever went out of Indiana. He knew nothing about military affairs, but devoted his entire time to studying them so at the end of two months he was as competent to drill the regiment as any officer in it. He was too strict a disciplinarian to be popular. There was a Lieutenant-Colonel in the regiment who had the love of the men. He was a good politician and was fond of sitting down with his soldier boys as one of them. He was very careless in his observation of military etiquette and so for a time he was the most popular officer in the regiment. The soldiers, to affirm his popularity and emphasize their dislike for their Colonel, presented a beautiful sword to the Lieutenant-Colonel and asked the Colonel to make the speech of presentation. This he did with great cheerfulness and showed no sign of feeling injured on account of the intentional reflection upon his unpopularity. When the regiment entered into actual service all this was speedily changed. The regiment soon found that the Colonel never asked them to go anywhere where he did not lead, and his personal devotion to the fortunes of his regiment—which through his care and drill was one of the most effective in the service—made for him a warm place in his men's hearts.

His love of fighting and his absence of fear was illustrated in a story given me by a gentleman in London, a Democrat, who, when the news of the President's first nomination was nublished there, said: "The Republicans have nominated a good fighter." In explanation of this remark he said that he saw Mr. Harrison once during the war, but under such circumstances as to give him an unusual idea of his pugnacity and courage. The story told was a contractor on his way North with cotton. The boat chartered by him, upon reaching a certain point upon the Ohio River, was stopped to take on a number of Union officers on their way home to the North. Colonel Harrison, who was going home on a short leave, was with them. The journey of this steamer down the river was not wholly without danger. Every now and then an ambush of guerrillas would fire at the boat. The pilot kept the boat as far away from the Kentucky shore as possible, and every now and then the channel would force them over in the neighborhood of Kentucky, and the result was generally an attack. For several hours during the first day peace and quietness reigned. The most serious attack came during the mid-day dinner. The officers were seated at the Captain's table, when without any warning a volley of bullets came whistling through the thin partitions of the saloon. This gentleman said the officers, as far as he could see, went down upon the floor or crawled into their staterooms, where they piled up their mattresses for protection. The panic was very great. The story teller recovered himself after a few moments, and crawled along to a protected place where he could look out on deck. Greatly to his surprise, he said, he saw Col. Harrison standing alone on the deck in full range of everybody with a revolver in each hand, returning the shots as well as he could, until the boat passed around the bend and out of range.

Mr. Blaine, while apparently very expansive in conversation, is really one of the most secretive men in American politics. This is his theory about keeping a secret: He said one day: "If you tell a secret to one person," here he drew the fore-finger of his right hand across the palm of his left, as he added, "that is one." Then making a second stroke with his finger across his palm, he said: "tell the secret to two and that makes eleven."

There is apparently no malice in Mr. Blaine's disposition. He has a high temper and is a good vigorous enemy when his blood is warmed, but he never yet has pursued a policy of revenge. He says that it is one of the cruellest wastes of a man's mental and spiritual force to devote any time or thought in following out a policy of retaliation. Life is altogether too short, said he once, for any kind of revenge. So, this being his spirit, he was always ready to make up the Konkling quarrel which occurred when Mr. Konkling and he were young members of the House of Representatives. He would have accepted at any time the extended hand of Mr. Konkling and would have gone any time during the great New Yorker's life half the way to the point of reconciliation. But Mr. Konkling never would make one step and always frowned coldly upon any attempt of mutual friends to bring the two together. Mr. Blaine has been often brought in the personal neighborhood of Mr. Konkling and always regarded it as more of a bore than otherwise, the fact that they were not on speaking terms. The attitude of Mr. Konkling occasionally appealed to the sense of humor in Mr. Blaine. One of the most delightful stories that Mr. Blaine tells is where he gives an account of a dinner given by a well-meaning idiot in Washington who thought he could carve out a national reputation for himself by being the means of bringing these two statesmen together. His manner of doing so was very original. He devised a dinner party as the meeting place for the proposed reconciliation. He notified neither gentleman of his noble intentions. He first invited Mr. and Mrs. Blaine to come to dinner without indicating in his invitation that they would be expected to meet. After he had their acceptance, he sent out an invitation to Mr. and Mrs. Konkling. He made the number of the invited very small so that of necessity they would be forced into close neighborhood, and what the genial host hoped would prove to be a mellowing atmosphere. He carried his ingenuity and originality to the farther extent of sending Mrs. Blaine out to dinner on the arm of Mr. Konkling and Mrs. Konkling on the arm of Mr. Blaine. The two gentlemen were placed opposite each other. During this lovely and charming dinner Mr. Blaine maintained an animated conversation with Mrs. Konkling and Mr. Konkling talked freely and frankly with Mrs. Blaine. The majestic New Yorker, however, was coerced in no way by the nearness of his enemy and never remotely acknowledged the fact of Mr. Blaine's presence. And so the dinner dragged its weary length along in as delightful and agreeable a fashion as anyone might imagine who knew Mr. Konkling and his peculiar ways.

Blaine has always had great liking for the newspaper profession. When he was in the Cabinet with President Garfield he was very communicative to the newspapers. There was no one in public life who understood better the value of newspaper publication, or who knew better the proper time to make such publication. When he has had anything of importance to give out he has always selected the press agencies. Those who notice the dates of these will observe that they are nearly always sent out Sunday nights so as to appear in the morning papers when there is generally less printed to distract the attention of the public. Whenever in those days he used to give anything to the special correspondents, he would write out himself the dispatch. Then the correspondent would have to copy that dispatch, leaving in his hands the original manuscript of the paragraph in question. I remember upon one special occasion, when he was in the State Department, I called at his house to ask him about a news matter; he readily complied, giving the information desired, but said he would write it himself. I asked him to dictate it and I would save him the trouble of doing the writing, but no, he said he could not dictate anything which he wished written with care. And so, for twenty minutes after, he scratched away with lightning-like rapidity upon the paper in front of him and when he finished he tossed the manuscript to me as if it were a bundle of bank notes. I thought then that I had a most valuable autograph manuscript of Mr. Blaine, but I soon found that I had not, that I was to copy the paragraph in question. After this was done I handed the manuscript to Mr. Blaine. He advanced with it in his hand to a gas jet over his table; he lighted the paper and then, carrying it as a torch he walked with a stately stride to the fireplace, which was empty. Into its blackened mouth he hurled the fiery mass of burning paper and then stood, with arms folded, looking down upon it until it was burned to the last ash. It was very dramatic, very picturesque, and so unstudied.

Dr. Keely, who has gone to Europe to be syndicated in various by-clone forms for the benefit of a fabulous British public, owes nearly all of his prominence and financial success to the friendship and support of Joseph Medill, the editor of the "Chicago Tribune." It was only a very few years ago when Dr. Keely was a country physician in a small town of Dwight in the State of Illinois. There he made a discovery, created after a time a local reputation. An enthusiastic citizen of Dwight called one day upon Mr. Medill to ask him to herald this news of a great discovery to the world. Mr. Medill, like most great newspaper editors, is not overcredulous. He said that what was reported was interesting—if true. It was very easy for the Dwight enthusiast to show whether it was true or not. Mr. Medill said that there was hanging about the office a tramp compositor who had not drawn a sober breath for thirty years. During occasionally feeble lucid intervals he was permitted to work in the composing room of the "Tribune" office. He was such a phenomenal, irredeemable drunkard that the office took a pride in him and cherished him as the most frightful example of that period and region. This Dwight enthusiast said that even such a man as that could be cured. "Well," said Mr. Medill, "if that can be done, I will give Mr. Keely full credit. But," he added grimly, "it will have to be done first." In order to insure both sides fair play Mr. Medill detailed two reporters to take charge of the awful drunkard and to get him into condition for transportation and civilized handling. The example was fished out of some neighboring gutter and carted off to a Turkish bath room. After several hours of work he was brought to semi-consciousness and was clothed in clean garments bought from various shops near by. A barber completed the work of restoration and then the reporters, with their victim in charge, who hadn't the slightest idea where he was going or why he was carried off to Dwight, Illinois, Mrs. Medill informed me that the awful example was positively cured inside of four weeks' treatment and has never had a relapse since, although this occurred some three years ago. He is to-day one of the regular printers in the "Tribune" office. Mr. Medill was so impressed by this that he gave great prominence to Dr. Keely, and it is through this prominence given by Mr. Medill has come the great financial success of the Keely business. It is said that Mr. Medill every time he sees this compositor come into the office has an article written. At any rate, Mr. Medill has been most generous and has given up columns of space to what he profoundly believes to be a great and honest discovery for the benefit of the race.

Murat Halstead is a breezy, vigorous, out-door looking man. He was evidently brought up in a vigorous school, judging by some of the stories I have heard him tell of early editorial experiences in Cincinnati. This town has always been noted for its newspaper fights. Mr. Halstead says that in the early days it appeared to be the fashion of some one in the town to lick an editor at least once a week. An editor in those days was often called upon without any preliminary notice to defend himself. Mr. Halstead says that the fiercest fight he ever had in his life he once had with a stranger, and to this day he does not know what the fight was about; neither did he ever learn the name of his vigorous enemy.

"This eventful fight," he said, "took place a number of years ago." He was walking up the steps of the Cincinnati postoffice, and was alone. Going up he saw coming down a tall, powerful man, accompanied by a small under-sized chap. Mr. Halstead said that as he advanced towards them he saw that they were very much interested in his personal appearance. The tall and more powerful of the two men coming toward him was making insulting remarks. As he passed Mr. Halstead on the way down his criticisms were of such a personal nature that the editor, who had tried to keep his self control, concluded that it was easier to fight than to try and contain his rage. So he swung around on one heel in the good old Cincinnati style and struck the Ohio citizen who did not like his appearance back of the ear. Coming down with the full weight of his powerful figure upon the descending body of his enemy, the weight sent the fallen one clear out over the curb into the middle of the street where his head bounded over a few cobble stones before he came to rest. He was knocked far enough away for a moment for Mr. Halstead to turn to the smaller man. He found him with his hands in his pockets coming toward him. He knew that this was not a good sign in a fight, and so he made a rush for the little man before he would have a chance to draw a weapon. As the gigantic editor came toward him with a sense of muscular power, the little man performed a feat which I have never heard recorded in any known history of athletic feats. He ran at top speed backwards up the steps without stumbling, ever keeping his eyes upon his advancing friend. Mr. Halstead says that he ran backwards up these steps so much faster than he could run forwards that he gave him up and turned to meet the citizen whom he had knocked below, and who was now coming up the steps in good courage and — persons, ready to destroy Mr. Halstead.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, GENERAL MANAGER.

"Then," said Mr. Halstead, "a fight began, the equal of which I have never personally known. I had the advantage of being on the upper side. We exchanged some terrific blows. He hit me a number of times on my arms. Each blow was so powerful that it temporarily removed the flesh, and the blow went through clear to the bone. You have no idea how it hurts to be hit on the bone of your arm in that way. These blows were delivered according to the best scientific methods known at that time," Mr. Halstead obtained the second knockdown, although before arriving at this glorious result he received four or five body blows; had one side of his back scratched well up and had generally disarranged his dress. As his opponent went down a second time, the little man who had been dodging around behind them again ran up the stairs backwards.

As the man who had been sent to the gutter twice arose deliberately to come up for another bout, Mr. Halstead's partner came around the corner. He was an absent minded individual who walked the streets in those days twirling a pen-knife in his hands. He came running with his knife in his hand, but before he got close enough to come to the rescue Mr. Halstead's opponent was back in front of him. The Field Marshal said that he was nearly spent at this stage of the game. He said he had just a quarter of one lung left to breathe with. The perspiration ran down his body in streams, and at times there was acute pains in his spine that he nearly screamed. His partner cried out as he came down, coining a word which Mr. Halstead had never heard before or since, exclaiming "Get out, you snarf." Whether it was the sound of this unusual epithet or not, the opponent was taken off his guard and Mr. Halstead's huge fist struck him under the nose. The clump of the fist went by into his right eye and the knuckle of the left finger went into the other eye. He again fell into the street. Then he arose, shook himself and started off on a dead run, as if he was thoroughly satisfied with the morning's work. Mr. Halstead was helped to his office but it was several days before he recovered from the shock. But he never had the satisfaction of knowing what the row was about.

Nervous Debility.
Symptoms.—Dizziness, weariness, with nervous, irresolute feeling, irritability, no energy, loss of memory, despondency and low spirits, trembling, caused by slight excitement, sleeplessness, poor appetite, and, frequently, palpitation.

The causes of nervous debility are many: overwork, lack of bodily exercise, insufficient rest and nourishment, absence of amusement, loss of vitality, etc. The results, however, are the same: poor circulation of blood, impaired digestion, deranged nervous system; the heart loses force, the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels fail to perform their functions. This should not be, when a remedy is ever at hand.

Our Prices are the Lowest, and our screens will wear at least three times as long as cheaply made screens. There is some difference between a Portland made carriage and one made in the West, but there is a greater difference between our screens and the cheaper grades that are sold at prices in advance of their value. We make screens to order only and will send men to show samples, give estimates, or take measures.

WIT AND WISDOM.

"Worra, but it must be; he's the fee's to get up here on top want more, to D. J. — Washington Post."

More Direct.
"Ah, Wadsley, do you happen to have $5 that you don't need?"

The wild and woolly West has a good many sins laid at its door, but the literary flavor of some of its critics is surpassed by that of the gentleman who furnishes the musical critiques of a Knoxville paper. Here it is: "Prof.
Charles Garrett played two piano selections, one of his own composition and one of Chopin's, and old Chopin would have been jealous if he had been present."

It is said that the report of the Boston

Saturday evening Capt. Geo. A. Dow entertained Engine Company No. 2 at the forgotten speed contest.

cago without change.

A Sirocco Struck the Town.

The hot weather of Sunday and Sunday night met with a rebuff about 8 a. m. yesterday, when the wind came out from the east and a penetrating fog, or mist, made heavier clothing comfortable, the mercury running down in the sixties, but by noon the wind shifted to the south and west, and by 4 o'clock in the afternoon there was a scorching breeze, like a sirocco, from the west, booming the mercury up to 87°, by Mr. Berry's thermometer on Exchange street, and 94° by another. One man said it was 105 at his front door. Soda fountains hissed all the evening.

Accidents.

A rear wheel came off one of the Millett store delivery teams on Congress street last evening, and the driver took a tumble, but no damage resulted.
A lady in one of the Cape barges became prostrated by the heat yesterday

Williamson's drug store and she was soon able to proceed.

EPISCOPAL MISSIONS.

The Annual Report of Rev. Canon Ogden General Missionary.

At the annual meeting of the Episcopal Board of Missions, held at St. Luke's Cathedral last evening, the treasurer of the board presented his report as follows:
Balance on hand last year $ 441 Contributed by the various branches during the year 1,948
Balance on hand at present 826 Remarks on the subject of general missions were made by Rev. Mr. Winkley of Saco, Rev. Mr. Moody of Rockland, and Rev. Mr. McCullay of Houlton.
Rev. Canon Ogden, the general missionary, made his report during the course of which he spoke as follows:
"Some of the older and more important members of this board have been called to their reward during the past year, while we are left to work while the day lasts.
Mr. C. B. Merrill represented St.
Luke's parish in this board in 1887.
Since that time his interest in the missionary work has always been constant and uniform, and it is difficult to realize that henceforth we shall be deprived of his cheerful presence and co-operation.
Mr. G. E. B. Jackson's connection with the Board of Missions dates from 1889.
He was so faithful to his duty in every department of the church's work, his zeal was so real and his counsels so wise that this, the first annual meeting since his death, can not miss the opportunity of placing this tribute of reverence to the memory of this distinguished member.
The Rev. Henry R. Pyne was not a member of this board at the time of his decease. He had removed from the diocese in connection with the work for the colored people, and was in the employ of that commission. But for 16 years he had been with us, interested in this work an efficient and valuable member of the board, and he will be lovingly remembered as a faithful steward of God's grace.
Seven clergy have come into the diocese to make good the places left vacant by removals, while two stations on the eastern border are supplied by clergy of the diocese of Fredericton.
We have lived to see under God's blessing, a glorious revival in St. Peter's church, Rockland. Under the present rector new life has been inspired into the body, and new methods have been adopted. The new structure which took the place of the old building some five or six years ago, has been enlarged so that the seating capacity is now over 300. A boy choir has added dignity and character to the worship. Guilds have been formed for the young men and women. A large basement room has been fitted up for the Girls' Friendly Society. A new chancel has been added with its handsome window and a magnificent font; while 56 children and adults have been baptized in the last nine months.
Some new work has been undertaken.
In August last, at Hull's Cove, Mt. Desert, the Church of Our Father was consecrated to the service of Almighty God.
This church is far more expensive than the usual country church, being built of stone, and was built by two ladies in memory of their brothers, who formerly resided in New York. For a portion of the year the rector of Church of Messiah, Dexter, has added to his work in holding service at East Corinna, where a few church people live and form the nucleus of a congregation.
In October the church laid the corner stone of a chapel at Woodfords and the building has been so far completed as to allow the holding of the Sunday school in what may be called one of the transepts of the chapel.
The chapel will be finished so soon as the masonry is in hand, as no debt will be incurred on the building. Less than $1000 are now needed, and if such a result could be reached this autumn the new mission at Westbrook and at Woodfords would give ample field for another clergyman.
A beginning has been made at Farmington and there is reason to hope that services may be established there.

GOSPEL MISSION.

Rev. S. F. Pearson and Wife Unanimously Invited to Remain.

At the annual business meeting of the Gospel Mission held last evening the following committees were elected for the ensuing year.
Finance Committee—C. N. C. Davis, H. I.
Holland, F. C. Cook.
Business Committee—N. G. McAleney, E. K.
Richardson, George C. Litchfield.
It was voted to extend to give Rev. S. F.
Pearson and wife a unanimous invitation to remain as the missionaries during the year ending June 1, 1893, at a salary of $1500 per annum. The year that has just closed has been the most prosperous in the experience of the mission and several new branches of the work were considered for the coming year.
Mr. Pearson has served the Mission long and faithfully. He has been with the Mission constantly for fourteen years; and in the last five years has not missed preaching at the Mission Hall a single Sunday. This is a remarkable record, and Mr. Pearson merits a vacation if ever a minister did.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Seth C. Gordon has returned from Detroit.

Dr. Sylvester has returned from Minneapolis.

Miss Hattie Perkins, who has been employed for some years as a seamstress at Eastman Bros.' cloak room, was the victim of a paralytic shock last week, and her father came to take her to her home in Farmington yesterday.

Dr. George Leon Walker, pastor of the First Congregational church, Hartford, Conn., has again notified the church committee of his desire that his resignation, now lying in their hands for four years, be at once accepted.

Mr. Franklin Simmons, the sculptor, leaves Portland today for Boston, where he will stop a day and then proceed to New York, where he will take the North German Lloyd steamer for Genoa the last of the month.

Mr. Cyrus H. Kilby, well known in this city and throughout the New England States among the members of the Old Fellows' fraternity as "the Veteran of 44 Years," will commence canvassing for the sale of his latest publication, "On the Road, or a Familiar Talk With My Brothers and Friends," in this city and vicinity Wednesday morning. He will call upon his many old friends and ask them to aid him "On the Road."

POLITICAL NOTES.

Windham Republicans have elected the following delegates to the state convention: Thomas S. Mason, Thomas L. Allen, Jos. W. Doughty, Charles A. Rogers, Joshua S. Roberts.

At the Third District Democratic Convention at Pittsfield the other day:

A delegate—"I move that the permanent organization be made temporary." Another delegate—"I second the nomination."

Governor Burleigh is making a splendid and steady canvass in the Third Congressional District, and although his opponents seem to have endeavored to put him at disadvantage by having the convention in haying time, this will be almost sure to fail of the intended object. Governor Burleigh as a candidate has already demonstrated his ability to secure a big vote at the polls.

The Republicans of Standish held their caucus Saturday, and chose delegates to the state and county conventions. Hon. Tobias Lord presided, and Mr. P. F. Paine was secretary. For the state convention, Tobias Lord, O. S. Sanborn, W. H. Libby, J. H. Rich and L. H.
Moulton were chosen delegates. For the county convention, G. M. Tucker, J. W.
Knight, D. W. Stanley, W. W. Wingate, and F. W. Dolloff were chosen delegates.

The Democratic city committee of Deering met at Woodford's last evening, and organized with the choice of the following officers:
Chairman—John F. Sawyer.
Secretary—C. L. Rigg.
Treasurer—L. W. Dyer.

The old chairman, Mr. H. A. Jackson did not stand for re-election. The members in the several wards chose the following chairmen: Ward 1, John F.
Sawyer; Ward 2, Captain William Sennett; Ward 3, Alexander A. McKone; Ward 4, George W. Furlong; Ward 5, L.
W. Dyer; Ward 6, Isaac F. Clark; Ward 7, Augustus Tate.

The Gorham Democrats have chosen the following delegates to the county convention: George B. Emery, S. B.
Guthrie, Frank C. Harding, W. H. Lambard, Jr., H. G. Parker and J. L. Higgins. The Somers and Sweet men claim the delegates between them. For the district convention, D. F. Whittier, A.
Boothby, L. Williams, F. Freeman and J. W. Jordan are the delegates chosen.

Major E. N. Morrill.

The following, from the Kansas City Journal, will be read with interest:

The strength of Major E. N. Morrill as a candidate for governor is the growth of years. No other candidate has had his experience in the legislature, dating back to territorial days, and coming all the way down, in the House and Senate, and as chairman of the most important committees. He began as a poor boy in Kansas, and his growth and success are typical of the growth of the state. In Congress, where he served eight years, he was the author of the most important pension bill ever enacted, and became the leading authority in both branches on that theme. Members, senators and two presidents often sent for him and relied upon his statistics, his candor and his sound judgment. When his pension bill reached the White House, President Harrison sent for Morrill, signed the bill in the presence of Secretary Blaine and Major Morrill, and gave to Morrill the pen which had made the bill a law—a law which gives $150,000,000 to Union soldiers every year.
When James G. Blaine was first a candidate for President he called upon his old friend to lend him his forces in Kansas.
Morrill presided over the stormy state convention, and the instructions for Blaine were given.
There has been no movement for any good cause in Kansas, from the beginning of its history, in which E. N. Morrill has not taken an active part. And his strength as a political force and power in the state is found in the work he has done, in the friends he has made all along the line of march.
The friends of Morrill are in every county, by hundreds of firesides. "They reckon ill who leave him out." Consult the election returns, the cold facts and figures, and Morrill is always found running very largely ahead of his ticket. No charge is made against him anywhere, or by any one, except that he is a banker.
All of his one idea assailants are sorry that they are not bankers themselves; that they have not practiced his economy, his integrity; that they have not his sagacity, his foresight. They would like to have it, to have all his strong traits of character, but calamity howling has made success unpopular, has enthroned pauperism and improvidence as gods to be worshipped; and so the cry is raised that Morrill is a banker. These cheap appeals to ignorance and prejudice do not last long. They die early and leave no sign save a dirty stain in the mouth of their inventors. Major Morrill is making a strong and active canvass for governor, and has tried and true friends in every part of the state who are his enthusiastic supporters.
The Alliance party, by its platitudes, by its laws, by its bills, by its speeches, by its judicial decisions, has given Kansas a name allied with ignorance, dishonesty, infamy. The state must be rescued from the hands of demagogues and charlatans. The nomination of Morrill would be his election, and his election would wipe out the memory of the recent crazy campaign and put the great state again on the highway of advancement and progress, with the old flag still flying, not a star dimmed not a stripe erased.
Major Morrill is a Maine man, a former resident of Morrill's Corner, Deering.

THE RETURN OF THE ANNIE LEWIS.

A letter has been received from Captain W. H. Lewis of the bark Annie Lewis, dated Buenos Ayres May 11th.
Captain Lewis said they made the passage out in 50 days from Portland, the best trip this year. He said that he would be ready to sail for Boston in about three weeks, which would be about June 2. She is probably about twelve days on her way now.

Confirmation.

On Sunday, June 12th, Bishop Healy confirmed 201 persons, mostly children, in Waterville and 43 in Fairfield.

OBITUARY.

Theodore I. Pingree.

Died at the old Pingree homestead in Denmark, June 8th, Theodore I. Pingree, the last of a family of fourteen children.
He was born Jan. 3, 1818. His father was Thomas Pingree, who moved from Heniker, N. H., in 1822. Family history says of Thomas Pingree that "he went on a lot of land about a mile and a half from the centre of the town, felled and cleared a few acres, then built him a house, which was a part of the house in which he died in 1848. He accumulated a good property." Under the same roof passed away the youngest of his children, Theodore, after years of intense suffering cared for by his daughters, Mrs. F.
Wilson and Minnie J., who realized not only the willingness, but the anxiety of their parent to pass beyond and join the mother, from whom separated only a few years.

A man of sterling integrity, Mr. Pingree will be missed. He leaves six children to mourn the loss of a kind father.
Thomas A. Pingree, his son, of Lonsdale,
R. I., Thomas S. Pingree of Newton, Mass., Edward H. Wilson, his grandson, who finishes a classical course at Brunswick this month, Mrs. Phoebe J. Cole, of Woodfords, and Miss Millie Frost of Cumberland Mills, were present at the burial services.

Captain Robert L. Spear.

Haverhill, Mass., June 13.—Captain Robert L. Spear, one of the proprietors of the Haverhill Gazette, died at his residence on Arlington street Sunday afternoon. He was born in Blue Hill, Me., March 13, 1833. At 14 he entered the employ of Edwards, Brewster & Co., insurance agents, Boston, remaining four years. Subsequently he occupied various responsible mercantile positions. In 1863 he accepted the position of paymas-ter's clerk in the army. Afterwards he had charge of the retail office of R. H.
White & Co., Boston, where he remained until he became connected with the Haverhill Gazette, three or four years ago.
He served two years as a member of the Somerville Board of Aldermen, and as representative from that city in 1880. He was a member of a number of orders. He leaves a wife and one daughter.

Captain E. C. Jordan.

FARMINGTON, June 13.—Captain F. C.
Jordan, a retired sea captain from Brunswick who has lived in Farmington the past year, died this morning aged 72. He commanded the ship which brought the post John Boyle O'Reilly, to New York in 1869.

Willie Tillbrook
Son of

Mayor Tillbrook

of McKeesport, Pa., had a Scrofula bunch under one ear which the physician lanced and then it became a running sore, and was followed by erysipelas. Mrs. Tillbrook gave him

Hood's Sarsaparilla

The sore healed up, he became perfectly well and is now a lively, robust boy. Other parents whose children suffer from impure blood should profit by this example.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO-DAY the democratic State Convention of Ohio will be called to order at Columbus.

Its action will be invested with more than ordinary political significance, because the Buckeye State has in Ex-Gov. CAMP-BELL, possible presidential material. The work of the convention, therefore, is of more than local importance, and may be attended with results which will make themselves felt at Chicago.

Making themselves felt with level-headed purchasers are our Balbriggan shirts and drawers at 75c, sold by everybody for $1.00.

The extremely hot wave we've had for these last few days forcibly reminds us that it is time to change from spring to summer underwear.
We've got all the regular grades, 25, 50, 75 cents and $1.00, and higher if you want.

Better drop in and see them.
